President Arthur has concluded that he will not visit the New Orleans exposition, not, however, until after the 4th of March.

The liquor dealers in New York sent $150,000 to Albany to get a law repealed. It didn't work. It was a republican legislation.

Colonel Spooner thinks there is no country like old Rock. Well, he is right. Rock is a mighty political power when it moves in the right direction.

It would be pretty hard for any one to explain why Teller, of Colorado, was nominated for the senate. If he is the best man the state has, the expense is sufficient.

There should not be a single republican in the Illinois legislature to object to the nomination of General Logan for senator. The republicans of Illinois owe him their votes and their confidence.

A bill has been introduced in the Minnesota legislature declaring that any person or persons who shall conspire or combine to affect the price of grain shall be fined from $1,000 to $10,000. Such a bill ought to become a law without delay.

The estate of the late Schuyler Colfax is worth more than that was at first supposed. The will has been admitted to probate at South Bend. The family residence with its contents goes to Mrs. Colfax, together with half the residue of the estate, and the rest goes to Schuyler Colfax, Jr. The estate is valued at $500,000, and is without inquest branch.

The friends of Colonel Spooner are under obligations to the newspapers which made attacks upon him charging him with being a professional lobbyist and nothing but a corporation lawyer. The people knew these statements to be lies, and they called the louder for the colonel's nomination. His enemies helped him very much, and it was very unfortunate for General Faribault that he had such papers on his side.

There is still some hope for Utah. Rudger Olausson was convicted of polygamy, and sentenced to pay a fine of $800 and to four years' imprisonment. He appealed the case, and wanted to be released on bail pending the trial of the appeal, but the supreme court of the United States refused to issue a writ of habeas corpus for his benefit in that respect. So Mr. Clawson will have to pay the fine and spend four years in jail as a penalty for having more of the bliss of married life than the law allows.

Washington society is all "broke up," so a co-respondent of the New York Times says. Mr. Blaine proposes to put his heel on Mr. Frelinghuysen by having Mrs. Blaine "receive" on Thursday evenings. "Turned," it is explained in an excited tone, "is the Frelinghuysen's day." Stretching the week to it, almost three, there are six evenings on which Mr. and Mrs. Blaine can receive. Out of these six days, some odd thousands of other families must choose an evening. Several hundred have unquestionably selected Thursdays. Of course, this question is of far more importance than anything that can come up before congress.

the civilized world, recognizes the existence of an All Wise Being, and therefore opens its session with brief religious exercises.

No man can honestly say that prayer does no good, and that man, whether they regulate the doctrines of Christianity or not, have not, at some time or other, been benefited by supplications to the Throne of Grace. A man who is thoroughly manly, whose mind is not totally deformed, and whose heart is not hardened by continuous sin, will hardly shirk the moral sense of the community in which he lives, by voting that prayer is no good, and ought not to be made in a legislative body. Even if a man can see no benefit in prayer, and himself does not believe in it, a decent regard for public opinion should induce him to give the resolution on prayer his support.

CABINET OFFICERS AND SALARIES.

It is reported from Washington that Senator Bayard will feel compelled to decline a cabinet position because he cannot afford to take it and maintain the position as its traditions and necessities require. This applies especially to the office of secretary of state, which entails heavier social burdens and responsibilities upon its incumbent than any other place in the cabinet and even more than the presidency itself.

The salary as senator is $8,000 a year, but he is a man of quiet tastes, and makes no attempt to keep with other senators who spend ten times their salaries in responding to the demands of Washington society. He can live on five thousand a year as senator and support his large family, but should he accept the office of secretary of state, this reserve will be cut off and four years of service will absorb his salary and his previous accumulations.

No cabinet minister has yet been able to live on his salary which is $8,000 a year. Hamilton Fish, who was secretary of state under Grant, spent $70,000 a year to maintain the dignity of the position. Mr. Frelinghuysen, the present secretary, is also rich, and spends many times his salary in keeping up the "style" which properly belongs to the first position in the government below that of the president.

Because of the low salaries of cabinet ministers, many able and deserving men like Mr. Bayard have been prevented from entering public life, and yet any attempt to increase them would likely meet with public opposition. The salaries of the vice-president and all the heads of the departments are altogether out of proportion to the dignity and importance of the positions. This country is no longer a little struggling life of coast settlement, whose people must pitch to pay meager salaries to their public servants. It can and ought to pay so liberally that it may draw the best and most efficient men into the public service.

New York and Philadelphia, and some other cities, pay greater salaries to their city officers than the United States does to cabinet ministers, while there is no comparison in the responsibility and ability required for the two positions.

A cabinet minister ought not to receive less than $20,000 a year, and then the sum would not be commensurate with the importance of the positions.

SPOONER'S SPEECH.

A Handsome Tribute to His Competitor, and a Grand Speech on Governmental Principle.

When Colored Spooner was notified of his nomination for the United States senator, he appeared before the caucus and delivered the following speech, which is masterly as it is graceful:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the Republican Legislative Caucus:

I am formally advised by your committee that in discharging the duty of selecting a candidate for United States senator your choice has fallen upon me. From the standpoint of an American citizen, the United States senate is the highest legislative body in the world, and I should be either more or less than a man if I could come before you under such circumstances, without some degree of trepidation. I am fully mindful, gentlemen, that to be named by a great party for such an office is a distinguished honor, but I have also the public interest, the public welfare, and the seat in the senate of the United States is not to be avoided for the honor which belongs to the place, but rather for the honor which such service brings with it.

The genius of Timothy O. Howe and Matthew H. Carpenter, by which they brought glory to Wisconsin in the senate, and the ability and straightforwardness by which Angus Cameron has won the respect of his colleagues and the confidence of the people, have made it difficult for those who come after them to meet the popular demand in a senator, but I have the choice of the legislature, I assure you, that I shall have no interest but your interest, and that I will give to the state of Wisconsin the highest efforts of my life until I shall give back into your keeping the great trust with which you will have clothed me.

It has been suggested that my election to the United States senate may bring disaster upon the party. If I could feel, gentlemen, that this suggestion is with warrant I should beg you to-night to reverse your judgment and record my defeat, for the success of the republican party, and the advancement of its principles, are dependent upon your support.

But how could I believe it to be with warrant, having the cordial and steady support of Rock and Walworth, and Vernon and Richland, and Waupaca, and the empire of splendid republicanism stretching away to the north?

I have a right to congratulate you, and the republicans of Wisconsin, and not only the republicans, but the whole people of Wisconsin, that this contest, which with me ends to-night, has been over altogether commendable from every standpoint.

It has been what such contests within the party ought to be—contests among friends. It has been dignified, courteous, and almost absolutely free from slander, and the fortunes of the two contending parties have been decided by the ballot box, not by the ballot box.

Theo is now almost a continuous sheet of ice in the river, extending from Milwaukee street bridge to the dam, which is something very unusual, the current being too swift to allow the ice to accumulate. In this instance, the nuclear ice lodged against the bridge piers, at the commencement of the cold snap, the floating ice rapidly accumulated, until that portion of the river is now filled.

The extreme cold of yesterday induced the board of education to dismiss the public schools until Monday; consequently the male portion of the younger grade are having a high old holiday to-day, the weather being moderated so that out-door amusement can be indulged in to almost an unlimited extent, "Shiny" appears to be the favorite play with the average boy, minus a pair of skates.

The Gazette is in receipt of a communication for publication from Messrs. Donnelly, Wolf & O'Brien, of Chicago, who are agents for the Siemers' Regenerator gas burner. This burner or rather fixture, is a new departure in the way of a lamp, and by far the most brilliant and at the same time economical light in use. The Gazette will contain to-morrow a description and testimonials for the light, in the interests of the above Chicago firm.

Marshall Hogan interrupted the quiet of the municipal court this afternoon long enough to introduce a Freeport tramp and one city drunk. After passing the civilities of the day with his now made acquaintances, the court gave permission to the tramp to receive bread and water at the county's expense for three days, and the drunk was allowed five days on the regular bill of fare at the county house down at the foot of South Second street.

The following is going the rounds of the state papers as the latest novelty for amusement at social gatherings: "Quotation" parties will soon knock the sport off progressive euchre, and they are a decidedly more intellectual and instructive way of passing the evening. Three quotations are read by each guest and the name of the author is to be guessed by others. Favors are given to the winners, and refreshments usually relieve the pressure upon the brains before they are dangerously strained.

Room was made for them in the boys clothing department, and on being asked if the stock was found to include 2,000 garments in great variety, varying in price and quality from an all wool suit, at $5.00, to the suet pinab, at $125.

The sale commenced at once and has been very satisfactory. The goods remaining unsold will be returned to the factory February 16th. In the mean time if you want a cloak of any description, or if you anticipate buying one within a year, don't fail to go in and examine the stock. The prices are sure to be satisfactory for they are less than manufacturing cost. Seeing is believing. Go and see.

Mr. Moseley, the local amusement manager at Juncerville, has effected an engagement with Josephy, the celebrated pianist, and he will appear in that city Saturday evening, the 24th. Rafael Josephy is undoubtedly the greatest pianist now before the public, and no doubt many of our music-loving citizens, will avail themselves of this opportunity to hear him. "Dolce Fine Press"—Keep your "musical owing citizens" at home. Mr. F. E. Bowles, as the Josephy engage- ment has been declared "off."

The opening of the K-C no roller skating rink last evening was a grand success notwithstanding the extreme cold and unpleasant weather. The floor wa-crowded with young lady and gentleman skaters, and the managers exerted themselves to make everything pleasant and comfortable for their patrons. The Bowery City band was present and added charm to the scene by discoursing some excellent music. The K-C no rink will be the popular place for amusement and we understand the managers intend to add new features to their programme each week.

—There has been issued from the job department of the Gazette office an illustrated catalogue of Clydesdale horses which are the property of the Galbraith Brothers. The catalogue contains 72 pages and the letter press not only sustains the reputation of the Gazette office for doing superior work, but the illustrations, of which there are 19, show marked and matchless care in the printing. In every respect the catalogue is a credit to the Gazette Publishing company and those immediately responsible for its appearance and correctness, and it is also an honor to the enterprise of the Galbraith Brothers, who are already among the most prominent importers of horses in this country.
